Farmers' Party Leader Gets After Meighen

Does Not Believe In Protection For Canada

BRANDON, Oct. 5.—(Can. Press Staff Correspondent)—Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressive Party, opened his campaign here to-night. Mr. Crerar attacked the contention of the Prime Minister that protection had brought prosperity to Canada. In 1911, Mr. Crerar declared, census returns showed that Canada had a population of 7,200,000. If it is the development of the natural resources, of agriculture, of forest, figures, amounted to 1,800,000. Births and of mining. These are the real over deaths numbered 140,000 so that Canada at the present should have a population of 10,140,000. However prosper.

CLEAR AS FOG

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct 5

—The Yankees tore off the opener of the World's series this afternoon by kalsomining the New York Giants by a score of 3 to nothing. Mays' submarine ball tied the Giants in knots, though Frank Frisch, the National Leaguers' third baseman, helped himself to four hits. Babe Ruth accounted for one of the Yankees' runs with a blazing single, but could not accommodate the thirty-five thousand fans

MORE PAPER CURRENCY

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—The feature of the Reichsbank statement for the week ending September 30, issued to-day, is an increase in the paper currency circulated by 4,205,300,000 marks to 84,384,300,000 marks.

with a home run. McNally's steal home in the fifth inning was the base running feature of the game. The Yankee batteries were Mays and Schang; Giants, Douglas and Synder.

HOUSE OF BISHOPS DISCUSSES UNION

Delegates In Attendance From Every Province of Dominion.

(Toronto Globe)

The House of Bishops of the Church of England in Canada opened its meeting in St. Alban's Cathedral to prepare for the General Synod, which will meet at Hamilton next week. Bishops from every diocese in the Dominion are in attendance, and the house is presided over by the Primate, Archbishop Matheson of Rupert's Land. There will be 25 Bishops present.

The General Synod, which meets triennially, is the highest court and legislative body of the Anglican Church. The last two meetings were held in Toronto, when the chief subject of discussion and legislative action was the revision of the Book of the Common Prayer. The outstanding question to be considered at the forthcoming meeting will be the re-union of Christendom and the possibility of the union of the Anglican Church with other Churches in Canada.

BURNT TO CINDER, RED HOT TUNNEL

REAR-END COLLISION IN FRANCE CAUSES AWFUL LOSS OF LIFE

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Many persons are believed to be dead and burning in the wreckage of a rear end collision of two suburban trains in the half-mile tunnel leading to St. Lazare Railroad Station, from which five bodies already have been recovered, at nine o'clock this evening. Twenty seriously injured persons and 53 slightly injured also had been recovered.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—It is felt that those who were trapped in the burning wreckage of the railway wreck may never be identified, as they would surely be burned to a cinder in the intense heat yet unreached by firemen, who were directing streams of water from both ends of the tunnel.

MT. ALLISON

SACKVILLE, Sept. 28.—Classes opened here Wednesday with large numbers attending.

The student body is divided about the same as last year, except for a big increase of freshmen will be about eighty or possibly more. In fact, one of the largest classes that has entered the university for twelve years.

The cry "Vive Freshmen" can still be heard as it is given by the sophomore class of half that large number. The initiation of the new class will be held Thursday night.

The tennis courts are in good shape this year and many of the students who are not turning out for football are making good use of them. The play-offs in tennis have not been arranged yet between the classes, but will take place very soon.

The Mt. Allison faculty have received an addition in the person of Prof. Randolph. He is a graduate of Virginia Tech. and also holds a M.A. from Harvard University. As a teacher of Physics, Prof. Randolph is already popular among the students.

First practice of the girls' volleyball team was held to-day. A goodly number of girls were present and prospects look good for a strong team from among the girls.

The first reception, usually known as the "welcome" reception, will be held in the Ladies' College Friday evening. The rumors are that the freshmen will be there in full dress, as it is bestowed upon them by the upper classmen.

The football team are practicing daily at 3:30 p.m. on the college campus. Everybody that can is turning out for practice, making a great deal

BORDEN RETIRES

SIR ROBERT BORDEN

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—"I do not intend to be a candidate at the approaching election," said Sir Robert Borden to-day. "After twenty five years of very active service in public life I am entitled to retire. Further my retirement is necessitated by my condition of health. My successor, Mr. Meighen took up his task under circumstances of extraordinary difficulty. He has discharged that task with distinguished ability and courage. In my judgement no successful attack has been made on his policy or administration of public affairs."

Timber Sharks Disgorge

The Ontario timber probe is forcing some of those who got ahead of the province during the Conservative regime to disgorge, says the St. John Globe. Some time ago George Farlinger paid $12,000 to settle the claim against him, and now the Walter H. Russell Timber Company has handed over $37,500 in cash and authorized the government to collect $17,500, a total of $55,000, from the sale of two thousand cords of wood. Another case is pending against the Shevlin-Clarke Company, and the commission is still investigating. The Crown authorities make announcement that these adjustments do not at all affect the right of the province to institute criminal proceedings. The Farmer government of Ontario is financially more successful in clearing up the timber muddle bequeathed by its tory predecessors than New Brunswick has been in getting paid into the provincial treasury where it honestly belongs, the thousands collected by leaders of a provincial tory government ostensibly for campaign purposes.

of competition for the positions on the team. Mt. A. plays her first game in Charlottetown, P.E.I. on Saturday of this week.

Also, before returning home, the squad have arranged for a game with the Abegweit, of Charlottetown. As the team is considerably better than last year, Mt. A. supporters are expecting victory, although the game played last year with St. Dunstan's University resulted in a win for them, 5 to 3.

MAY PAY NO MONEY FOR RELIEF WORK

Unemployment Committee Decides to Give Temporary Workers Orders, Not Cash.

HALIFAX—By a majority of one, the new Halifax unemployment committee decided at a meeting at the city hall to inaugurate a new method of dealing with "relief employment." By this new method, if the city council supplies the money, relief will be given not in cash, but in "kind"; that is, the necessities of life, which are enumerated as groceries, fuel and rent. To those workers who wish a little cash it is expected that at regular intervals a bonus will be given them, this to be on a sliding scale.

REMAINS ON ROSALIND

The body of the late Mrs. Hand, who died at Cleveland, Ohio, last month, will arrive by the Rosalind, due this afternoon. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon from the residence of Mr. P. Phelan, King's Road. Mr. J. P. Hand is accompanying his mother's remains.

CHURCH ORDERS WOMEN TO WEAR MORE CLOTHES

Notes Posted at Church of the Gesu Ask Ladies to Wear Collars, Closed and Long Sleeves and Avoid Transparent Dresses on Pain of Refusal of Sacraments.

(Montreal Star)

Declaring that Christian modesty must be practised by women in dress even if denial of the Sacraments have to be enforced as a means, a notice is posted in the Church of the Gesu on Bleury street in English and French at the various entrances today. The notice is in accordance with a decree issued by His Grace Archbishop of Montreal some time ago to combat the evil of scantiness of dress. Speaking to the Star this morning the Prefect of the Gesu, Rev. P. Plamondon, S. J., declared that the manner of dress of some women is a sin and a shame and contrary to good morals. "I do not understand it," he said, "they tell me it is the fashion, but it is not a reasonable one. It is licentious and a menace to our children." The notice is as follows: "Out of respect to our Saviour. (Continued on Page 3.)"

The Reward of Those Who Play Square

CHAPTER IV.

In Love With A Face.

"I understand, old fellow," he said in a low voice full of sympathy; "that artistic nature of yours has caught fire, and I'll leave you to blaze it out. Is there anything I can do before I go? Anything in the shape of—well, hesitated and colored slightly—"well, to put it bluntly, anything in the exchange line?"

Cyril Burne grasped his hand. "That's just like you, Jack," he said in a low voice. "No, thank you. I've enough for my modest wants, and I shall work—no, you needn't smile; I mean it."

"Well, then, I'll go to bed," said Jack. "Good-night."

"Stop!" said Cyril. "We—we shall want to talk over this again to-morrow, and I've remembered one thing you can do, or rather refrain from doing."

Jack held the door in his hand and waited, while Cyril paused.

It's this: I've an idea that possibly some one may hunt you up and make inquiries about me. It's not very probable, but it's possible. If any one should do so, will you tell them as little as you can?"

Jack nodded.

"The Sphinx shall not be more discreet," he responded, with a smile. "I'll forget that such a person as Cyril Burne exists."

"That's just what I want," said Cyril. "Good-night, old fellow, and pleasant dreams."

Left alone, he resumed his seat on the table, and fell into deep thought. Presently he took some money from his pocket, and counted it out on the table. It was anything but a large sum, but he appeared satisfied, and returned it to his pocket. In doing so his hand came in contact with a small box, and he drew it out, and looked at it thoughtfully. It was of silver, and bore an elaborate monogram, and it seemed to suggest some idea to him, for holding it still in his hand, he opened the door and went into the street. There was a horse pond close by, and he walked to it and flung the fusée-box into the middle. It fell with a little splash, and he stood absent looking at the circle it had made in the water.

"I don't think there is anything else," he murmured, feeling his pockets. "No, that was the last link, and it is gone to the frogs." Then he was turning to retrace his steps to the cottage, when he heard a voice, a woman's voice, in the lane on the other side of the pond.

It was a pleading, agitated voice, and he caught these words distinctly:

"You are hard—hard! Why do you treat me so? Do you think I am made of stone?"

Then a man's voice came in response.

"Nonsense! I am prudent for both our sakes, that is all. Trust to me and be patient. Go home now, and don't fret over anything."

The woman's voice murmured complainingly for a moment, then all was silent.

Cyril Burne smiled to himself.

"I'm in for adventures to-night," he mused. "A lovers' quarrel, I suppose."

At that moment he heard a step, a man's quick, firm step, coming toward him, and instinctively drew back into the shadow.

A tall, thin young man passed him rapidly, and went down the road, glancing to right and left as if he were anxious to avoid recognition.

Cyril Burne looked after him with a faint wonder and speculation.

"If I were the young lady, I should think twice before I trusted you, my friend," he said to himself; "you are too cautious and careful in your movements."

Then he went back to the cottage, and the incident vanished from his mind. The canvas at which John Wesley had painted attracted his attention, and going up to it, he took up a piece of charcoal and rapidly sketched an outline of a woman's head.

Quickly as it was done, it bore a striking resemblance to the head that he had seen at the cottage window, to Lady Norah Arrowdale.

He looked at it for a moment with heightened color, then muttered "A libel!" smudged it out impatiently, turned out the lamp, and went to bed.

Warning! Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting genuine Aspirin at all. In every Bayer package are directions for Colds, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Earache, Toothache, Lumbago and for Pain. Handy tin boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Drug-gists also sell larger packages. Made in Canada. Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

CHAPTER V.

A Trespasser.

When Norah woke the next morning, and, raising herself on her elbow, looked round the luxurious room, she felt bewildered and confused; it was all so different to the small and plain, though neatly furnished little room at Cliff Cottage. Then it flashed upon her that she was in St. John's Court, and that she was Lady Norah Arrowdale.

Instantly another remembrance sprang into her mind—the mysterious voice she had heard on the terrace. She got out of bed and peered through an opening of the window curtains, certainly not expecting to see the owner of the voice, nor to revive her memory of the incident every phrase of which was strongly impressed on her mind.

Norah was not a sentimental young lady, by any means, but she was not without a "natural" sympathy for romance, and the mystery of the unseen, unknown visitor who had, all unconsciously, so close to her, affected her more than she would have liked to admit.

A knock at the door caused her to hurry into her dressing gown. It was Harman, who had come to help her dress.

"Good-morning, my lady," she said in her subdued manner; "I hope your ladyship slept well."

"Oh yes," replied Norah; "I always sleep well."

"Yes, my lady," murmured Harman as she prepared the bath; "will you have hot water?"

"Oh, cold, please," said Norah, promptly.

NAME AND ADDRESS

As usual at the seashore, when a young man meets a young lady on the beach, he asks her name and address. She is coy about it, and gives it to him as you see it in her answer. What is her name and address? Answer to yesterday's puzzle: ALBERT, DAVID, ELMER, GEORGE, SAMUEL, ALEXANDER, ANDREW, THEODORE.

"The bath is ready, my lady. I will come when your ladyship rings," and she went into the next room, where Norah heard her at the wardrobe.

It seemed strange to be so waited upon, hand and foot, and Norah thought with a smile what a helpless creature a fine lady must become in course of time.

When she rang, Harman appeared with a couple of morning dresses on her arm.

"Which will you have, my lady?" she asked, as if the question were of the deepest importance.

"Oh, I don't care," said Norah; "you shall choose for me."

Harman considered the matter with evident conscientiousness, and at last selected one of white alpaca with small black leaves.

"If your ladyship were not in deep mourning, a lavender sash would be a great improvement," she suggested. Norah nodded, and took up the hair brushes forgetfully, but was reminded of her "fine lady" condition by Harman gently and respectfully taking them out of her hand.

"I can brush it so much better, my lady," she murmured apologetically.

"Yes, that I am sure you can," assented Norah, sinking into the comfortable chair and resigning herself. "I'm afraid I confuse you terribly, but I am accustomed to doing everything for myself; but I shall get used to it, I dare say."

"Oh, yes, my lady."

Norah was silent for a minute or two, marveling at the ease and skill with which the maid brushed the long thick hair without inflicting the least pain or inconvenience. Then, still thinking of her last night's adventure, she said:

"Who sleeps in this part of the house?"

"No one usually but your ladyship. Mr. Petherick slept in this wing last night, and my room is next your suit."

"There was no one, no gentleman, I mean, sleeping in the house excepting my father"—she hesitated a little at the novel word—"and Mr. Petherick?"

"No, my lady," replied Harman, with a faint expression of surprise in her face, which Norah saw in the glass. "We have very few visitors. Mr. Guildford Berton used to come and stay, but he has got a cottage in the village, just outside the gates."

"Is Guildford his only Christian name?" asked Norah, thinking that possibly he might have been the "Jack" the unknown had called to.

"Yes, my lady, I think so. I never heard of his having any other."

Then it would seem that the two men were absolute strangers. It was strange and mysterious! Harman wound the beautiful plaits of hair in a thick coil at the back of the shapely head, and finished dressing her mistress, and Norah got up and walked to the window. Harman was there before she could reach it, and opened it for her, and Norah stepped out on to the terrace. She was looking down, recalling the singular incident of the preceding night, when a bell clanged out so sonorously and suddenly that it startled her.

"The breakfast bell, my lady," exclaimed Harman, and she opened the dressing-room door, and stood holding it up, as Norah thought, as if for a princess to pass out.

The sun pouring through the painted window flooded the great hall with splashes of many-colored light, and Norah looked round with an admiration approaching awe.

A footman stood at an open door, and, guessing it to be the breakfast-room, she entered.

The earl, in a suit of gray tweed, loose but perfectly fitting, rose from his chair, and, approaching her, took her hand and kissed her forehead as he had done the night before, and led her to her seat at the head of the table.

G.W.V.A. Farewells Capt. Hugh Anderson

A pleasant and a jovial gathering took place at Donovan's last night, when several of the friends and comrades of Capt. Hugh Anderson met to bid him farewell, in view of his approaching departure by the S.S. Rosalind on Saturday for New York where he will be associated with his brother, Mr. John Murray Anderson, who has won merited fame in the theatrical world of two continents. Capt. Anderson was not privileged to join the fighting ranks, but that was no fault of his. He made frequent efforts to join the regiment in France or anywhere else where service could be rendered, but boards were obdurate. Then he took up another form of service, and how highly his work at the Pay and Record Office was appreciated by the boys is shown by his popularity amongst them. On more than one occasion he succeeded in reaching the danger zone, and meeting Newfoundland's soldiers when shots and shells hurled menacingly. His work did not end with Victoria Street. On his return he threw his talents, his energies and his powers of perseverance and persuasion in to the work of the G.W.V.A. Many were the encomiums showered on him last night. As one speaker said, "Hugh has been indefatigable in his efforts to assist the disabled returned men in having their pensions increased, and he has much to be proud of." It is a record for any man to rejoice in, when services are appreciated and comradeship is real. The Advocate tenders cordial congratulations to Capt. Anderson, and joins in the general regret that he is leaving his homeland for a wider sphere of activity, and predicts for him a full share of the success already won by his gifted brother.

The Toast List follows:—
The King—Prop. Mr. J. G. Higgins, B.A., Chairman.

The Guest of the Evening—Prop. Mr. Harold Mitchell; resp. Capt. Anderson, M.B.E.

The Sergeant's Mess—Prop. Capt. G. J. Whitty, M.C., O.B.E., resp. President H. R. Peckham.

The Press—Prop. Lieut. J. McGrath, M.C., resp. Lieut. C. F. Garland (Daily News).

The Board of Pensions Commissioners—Prop. Mr. John Robinson; resp. Capt. H. V. Warren.

The Founder of the G.W.V.A.—Prop. Mr. H. R. Peckham, supported by the Chairman; resp. Mr. Harold Mitchell.

Absent Friends—Prop. Col. G. T. Carly, responded to in solemn silence.

The Chairman—Prop. Mr. H. R. Peckham, supported by Mr. Harold Mitchell; resp. Mr. J. G. Higgins.

During the evening musical selections were rendered by Mr. J. Ross. A pleasing feature was the presentation to Capt. Anderson of a handsome walking stick, with the inscription "Appreciation from the G.W.V.A. of Nfld."

SWIMMING CLUB

The Newfoundland Amateur Swimming Club, which has been recently organized, at present has a membership of 35. At a meeting which will be held tonight, several new members will be admitted. The purpose for which the Club was organized is to encourage the youth of St. John's in the art of swimming. The Executive are making arrangements to have a spring board installed in the Swimming Pool of the Seamen's Institute. They also propose to install rings and other improvements which will be for the use of members of the Club only. Manager Holmes of the Institute, who is President of the Club, has kindly consented to teach the members gymnastic exercises and Water Polo. It is hoped that, in the near future challenge games of Water Polo will be played between the "N.A.S.C." and the "Royal Swimming Club," which has been started by Messrs. the Royal Stores Ltd., for their employees.

If you want an introduction to the big purchasing public just try an ad. in the fishermen's papers—The Evening and Weekly Advocate.

And so Farewell—but may it be an Revolt.

Church Orders Women to Wear More Clothes

present in the Tabernacle, and for the edification of our neighbor, we beg women to appear in church only in dress of irreproachable modesty (collars closed and sleeves sufficiently long).

We draw specially to your notice the abuse of dress of irreproachable material.

And we hope that we will not be forced to use drastic measures such as the refusal of the sacraments of penance and the holy eucharist, to compel respect for the House of God.

Continuing his remarks upon the craze, Father Plamondon stated that on several occasions he was obliged to deny offenders interviews and order them home to dress themselves. "The extent of the scantiness of dress is the extent of the scandal," he commented, "and it is due to the influence of low necked dresses and short skirts that modesty in women vanished little by little."

The church on Bluary Street is not a parish church, and as a consequence the Prefect intimated that many women who followed the dress mania would not take a chance of going to their own church but would come to the Jesuits. This must stop, he added, and the steps we are now taking no doubt will have their effect. Warnings have been issued from the pulpit several times, but there is a persistency in the immodesty which appears to be very hard to overcome.

Chancellor O'Rourke of the Archbishop's Palace said that all the churches in the diocese were authorized to follow such steps to lead to a modesty in dress that is Christian and moral.

Grace met her uncle in the street one day. He asked her whether she was going out with a picnic party from her school.

"No," replied Grace, "I ain't going."

"My dear," said her uncle, "you must not say, 'I ain't going.' You must say, 'I am not going.' And he proceeded to give her a little lesson in grammar: "You are not going. He is not going. We are not going. They are not going. Now, can you say all that?"

"Course I can," responded Grace, cheerily. "There ain't nobody going."

DANGER

Need For Thorough Investigation.

The tragedy of this morning when a young life was snuffed out by a live wire calls for a full investigation concerning the condition of the poles carrying wires, electric or otherwise, which are a menace to the public safety. We are told that especially countrywards, many poles show that they are old and tottering, a storm such as last night's easily bringing them down. If this be the case, it is a matter for the authorities, and if such poles are found, some action should be taken against any Company responsible.

This is a serious matter and we draw the attention of all concerned to it so that we shall not have another such sad tragedy again.

P.E.I. FISHERY CONFERENCE HAS INTERESTING SESSION

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I.—This fall's session of the Fishery Conference was mainly taken up with a discussion on the meat and canned foods act, the officers from different sections giving their experiences with the enforcement of the law. The question of what latitude should be allowed packages with regard to underweight cans was dealt with, and the consensus of opinion was that the onus of having the correct weight should be placed upon the packers, otherwise these cans would be confiscated.

It was shown that there was a great improvement in the pack this year of that of the preceding years. Last year a considerable allowance was made packers on the ground that they were not familiar with the act. The matter of shrinkage was also touched upon, and the general opinion was that in order to turn out a six ounce can it was necessary to put in seven ounces before processing.

Inspector Crocker, of New Brunswick, told of the unsatisfactory sanitary condition of the factories in his district. Doctor Knight also spoke on this question, emphasizing the need of every factory being properly equipped with sanitary conveniences.

Dr. Knight, chairman of the Biological Board of Canada, gave an address on the standard pickle to be used in all canneries which, he recommended, at between 2 and 3 per cent, made by adding four ounces of good dairy salt to a gallon of fresh water. From experiments which he personally conducted, he came to the conclusion that strong pickling was not necessary to preserve the meat. This is a matter of proper bathing. He had packed lobsters with no pickle, using only a little fresh water, and they turned out sound, but pickle is required to develop the fine flavor of the lobster meat.

Clarence J. Tidmarsh gave an address on bacteria in lobster factories, showing the chief sources of contamination to be water supply, drainage, utensils, improper sterilization and improper boiling and delays in scalding, etc.

THE ADVOCATE is a weekly circulated newspaper and is therefore a most profitable advertisement medium.

THIS YEAR VS LAST YEAR

"Outport Watcher" Takes The "Daily News" To Task.

Regulations Were Fishermen's Protection.

It is a happy sign, indeed, to have the Daily News strike a tone of hopefulness regarding fishery matters.

The Advocate has always endeavoured to strike the note of optimism, even when other newspapers were crying "blue-ruin"; and when I see others acknowledging the error of their ways and veering around to a sane, patriotic viewpoint, I am confirmed in the opinion that "while the lamp holds out to burn" there is a hope for even the worst of those, whose sole business last year seemed to be the assassination of everything done on behalf of the country.

Therefore, I congratulate the Daily News when that paper considers that the present fishery situation shows a note of hopefulness; but, at the same time, am able to understand how the News conceives that "the fishery situation shows a note of hopefulness, compared with this date last year."

There is no comparison between the fishery situation of last year and the situation as obtaining now; and in asserting this opinion, I have no desire to blight the budding optimism of the Daily News, but only wish to refute the veiled attempt on the part of the News to further discredit the regulations, which were instrumental in giving a good price to the fishermen for their fish.

Taking the News' own statement, Labrador fish today is only worth $4.00 in most places, and $4.50 in this city, with the likelihood of a further decline.

Again, according to the News, shore fish is worth six dollars for No. 1.

What was the position at this date last year? Labrador fish was worth from eight to nine dollars and shore fish ten dollars and upwards. Thus, prices last year were almost double present prices, and yet, last year, the News howled "blue-ruin" but now says that the situation is hopeful, "compared with last year." I repeat, I congratulate the News on its optimism. The country needs it. The fishermen certainly need it. But, sincerely, I fail to see the sense or reason in comparing the present situation with that of this date last year, when prices have declined almost to half of the prices obtained under the regulations. At a low estimate, the fishermen will stand to lose six million dollars on this year's catch as against last year; and the fishermen must consider the News statement as rather ironical in the light of this fact.

In an endeavour to bolster up its argument, the News cites that shipments for September amounted to 222,098 qtls., representing an increase of 153,226 qtls. over the same period last year. Than this fact the News could not use a stronger argument against its statements, for the paper afterwards admits that scarcely any outright sales have been made this year and that the bulk of the 222,098 qtls. have been thrown in the markets on consignment.

For the past two weeks, the Advocate has been exposing the consignment curse, which is a consequence of lack of control and unrestricted shipments; or, in other words, which is a consequence of having no fishery regulations.

It is, therefore, sheer trash for the News or any other paper to compare the present situation with last year's, for every quintal of Newfoundland codfish shipped in

BUT THE FISHERMEN DO NOT FEEL ANY IMPROVEMENT ON LAST YEAR

'Merchants and Fish-Dealers Are Now at Liberty,' Says News

HOW DO THEY USE THEIR LIBERTY?

The Daily News, for a wonder, has an article on the fish markets this morning that is positively optimistic and makes out that everybody is happy over the fish situation and says it is a mighty fine "improvement over last year"!

The writer of that article must be seeing double if he thinks that this year shows an improvement over last. He must be either intentionally blind and deaf if he cannot see that eight and ten dollars for fish (last year's prices) is nearly double four and five dollars for fish, which is this year's prices.

Everybody is happy—EXCEPT THE FISHERMEN, and the "Daily News" is honest enough to leave all mention of the fishermen out of this "improvement" idea.

The Daily News says that last year "THE MERCHANTS were handicapped by regulations."

This handicap of the merchants meant $8 and $10 per qtl. for the fishermen.

The Daily News says that this year "the merchants and fish-dealers are at liberty to transact their business on business principles."

THIS MEANS THAT THE FISHERMEN ARE GETTING $4 AND $5 PER QTL. FOR FISH.

Now which is better for the country? To have merchants "handicapped" and fish at $10 or to have "merchants at liberty" and fish at $5?

What say you, Fishermen?

Sure the merchants are glad when they have no brain worry about the price of fish! Sure the merchants are glad when all they have to do is to send fish over to market and take what price the consignment ring decides to get for it.

But the fishermen do not feel satisfied.

This year they have to take a yaffle to more than one merchant to get a price, and they contrast this with the action of Mr. Coaker and the Government last year, when they received $8 for Labrador.

The Fishermen are not blind to what has happened. They remember a year ago when the Tory Opposition shouted from the house-tops that fish would not be worth five dollars per qtl. They remember that Mr. Coaker said it would be worth much more than that, and it was too.

They remember the outcry about the Regulations, and how they were frightened out of their wits by the dreadful stories the Tories spread about the result of the Regulations. And the Regulations were dropped.

But did the price of fish advance as the fishermen were lead to suppose it would?

Did the loss of the Regulations usher in the prosperous times that we were told by the Tories would come?

The fishermen sorrowfully today give the lie to these results. Fish prices were immediately cut in two and have remained low ever since, and the only happy people seem to be the Tories and the merchants and fish-dealers, who are no longer handicapped by the Regulations.

It is no wonder that the revolution of feeling among the fishermen against those who campaigned against their interests is so great today.

With proper cooperation the price of fish could be much more than it is and the fishermen would be more contented. They are playing the game today and taking their share of the result of world depression as bravely as any in spite of the fact that it has meant cutting their income in half, but they do object to the time-worn system under which they cannot obtain the utmost for the labour of their hands.

September 1920, was sold outright and paid before caroes left this country. The fish shipped this year is not sold at all, if it is sent on consignment. It is merely shifted across the Atlantic, to be placed in foreign stores and sacrificed at the expense of the fishermen, and the more that is shifted across the Atlantic, the greater will be the sacrifice and the lower will be the price on this side, as a consequence.

The "glutting" of the market means death to the price of fish. The regulations prevented this "glutting" and no fish could be exported, unless sold outright, thereby making it impossible for foreign buyers to "cut prices" as the holders of consignments can now do at our expense.

Certainly, it is a vain boast to shout about an excess of shipments over last year, when all fish last year was sold outright and when all fish this year is consigned and given over "holus bolus" to foreign merchants, whose sole object is to bleed Newfoundland for their own enrichment.

I must agree with the News, however, when the latter paper states markets are recovering from the effects of war, and there are many favorable features which were not visible last year. But I contend that this goes to prove that if the country had a fishery policy to control shipments and insist on outright sales as against consignments, that the merchants would be able to afford to give more than four dollars for Labrador and five or six dollars for shore fish. Under the regulations they would be giving, or they would be compelled to give, prices as good or better than last year's prices.

The loss is the fishermen's, who are always called upon to pay. The regulations were surely the fishermen's protection, and their families must face actual privation because politicians and merchants and foreign manipulators allied to defeat the policy of Mr. Coaker and the government.

At this juncture, optimism should be the watchword. Wretched, indeed, are those who sought or seek to injure our island home, but, in my opinion, it is not impossible when, knowing the truth, to refrain from offering regrets that conditions, as they effect

PREPARATION MADE FOR RECEPTION OF NEW PASTOR

The Parishioners of St. Thomas's held a meeting in Canon Wood Hall on Tuesday evening to arrange for the reception of their new Rector, the Rev. Ernest C. Earp, B.A., who leaves Liverpool to-morrow by the Digby and is consequently due here next week. Hon. R. Watson, Peoples' Warden, who presided, made a brief report in relation to his recent visit to Rev. Mr. Earp at Holy Trinity Church, Hull. Mr. Earp, who was at the point of leaving Hull to visit his father before proceeding to Newfoundland, gave Mr. Watson a hearty welcome and they spent some hours together discussing various parish matters. Mr. Watson also met Canon Becham, the Vicar of Holy Trinity, who spoke in the highest terms of Mr. Earp and predicted a most successful rectorship for him at St. Thomas's. On the Sunday previous, when Mr. Earp preached his farewell sermon, over 2000 people were present in the beautiful old Parish Church, testifying to the new Rector's ability as a preacher and the affection in which he was held by the people of Hull. One of the local papers in an account of the sermon, referred to him as "an excellent pulpit orator with a most harmonious voice." Just before the invitation came from St. Thomas's Mr. Earp had been appointed Vicar of St. Barnabas, York, having been selected by the patrons and wardens out of 45 applicants, but, after consultation with the Archbishop of York and the Vicar of Holy Trinity, it was felt that St. Thomas's offered a larger field of work and the Archbishop at once agreed to release him from St. Barnabas. Mr. Watson also saw Mrs. Earp, who was described as a clergyman's ideal wife. Both were coming to St. John's with a keen desire for the new work. At the conclusion of the chairman's report, Hon. M. G. Winter, C. B. E., spoke, expressing the appreciation of the Parishioners and moved a hearty vote of thanks, which was seconded by Mr. H. W. LeMessurier and carried by acclamation. The People's Warden then stated that His Lordship the Bishop had been pleased to approve of the nomination of Rev. Mr. Earp as Rector of St. Thomas's, and that subject to the arrival of the Digby, arrangements would be made for the induction of the new Rector on Sunday week, the 16th inst. On motion of Mr. R. W. Janes, seconded by Mr. G. J. Carter, it was decided that the matter of arranging a suitable reception be left in the hands of the Select Vestry. It was understood that the Women's Association and the other Parish organizations would have great pleasure in co-operating. There being no further business, the doxology was sung, Rev. A. Clayton pronounced the Benediction, and the meeting adjourned.

The Directors of this scholastic institution are very fortunate in securing the services of Miss E. M. Joyner, M.A., and Mr. Harold Hopkins, B.Sc., as additions to the staff since the mid summer holidays. They arrived by the last trip of the Sackham from Liverpool Miss Joyner, M.A., of St. Andrew's University, has won first class honours in classics and has the highest testimonials from the Professor of Greek of St. Andrew's University. She has had also several years teaching experience in George Watson's Ladies College—the famous Edinburgh School, as well as other schools in Scotland. Miss Joyner will have the special care of girls attending the Senior Associate of Arts classes in Bishop Field College, as well as general oversight of the Science classes in other grades.

Mr. Harold Hopkins B.Sc., of Manchester University has won first class honours in Geology, including chemistry, mathematics, metallurgy, paleontology and physics. During the war he served with the Royal Field Artillery as a Lieutenant on the Battle front and won the Military Cross. He is an enthusiastic tennis player and was Captain of Manchester University team. He has the highest testimonials from the Professors of Manchester University. We are glad to welcome in our educational circles both Miss Joyner and Mr. Hopkins and wish them every success in their labours with the coming generations of Newfoundlanders.

FEILDIAN'S CELEBRATE

The Old Feildians Association held a most enjoyable reunion at Wood's West End Restaurant last night. The affair took the form of a dinner, given in honor of the Feildians' Regatta team, who were so successful during the past summer. Mr. J. Whiteford McNelly, President of the Club, presided in a very acceptable manner, and amongst the guests present were Dr. W. W. Blackall, C. E. Hunt, R. R. Wood, G. W. B. Ayre, and W. J. Higgins, K.C. M.H.A. An excellent menu was provided, the catering being done in the well known Wood's style. Throughout the evening songs were rendered by Dr. Blackall, T. V. Payne, Frank Bennett, W. J. Higgins, G. W. B. Ayre, and H. C. Hayward, while Mr. G. LeMessurier presided at the piano. The speeches were of a very high order and the following was the toast list: "The King"—Prop. The chairman, resp. God Save the King. "The Feildian Regatta Team"—Dr. W. W. Blackall; resp. M. G. Winter, Jr.

"The A.A.A."—Prop. R. H. Tait; resp. G.W.B. Ayre. "Our Guests"—Prop. A. B. Perlin; resp. W. J. Higgins, K.C. "AULD LANG SYNE."

ADVERTISE in the ADVOCATE

THE METAMORPHOSIS OF MONICA

I GIVE and bequeath all the remainder of my property to my adopted niece, Monica Selworthy."

For twenty-four hours these words had drummed on Jasper Frenon's ears with a persistent monotony that should have dulled their sting, but the bitterness increased with every fresh realisation of what they meant to him.

Yesterday at this hour he was hurrying to Frenon Towers to attend his aunt's funeral and to step into the inheritance that he had counted on. Now the train was bearing him back to London, a poor man, while Monica Selworthy—dowdy, uninteresting Monica—stepped into everything.

"It's absurd. She won't know what to do with it now she's got it," he muttered, as he thought of the poor relation who had been Miss Frenon's unpaid companion. "If aunt meant to leave her in this position she might at least have prepared her for it by letting her assume a little dignity beforehand. Really, it's almost as unjust to her as it is to me. Well, I suppose I might as well go back to Canada and back my way through to success, but it's a bit hard after picturing myself in possession of Frenon."

He huddled in a corner of the compartment, his head sunk on his chest, his hand thrust deep in his pockets, and his eyes staring dejectedly into space. At the other end of the compartment two girls were chatting daily. Jasper's attention was suddenly arrested by hearing Monica's name.

"I say, what luck for Monica Selworthy! Fancy that mouse of a girl inheriting a couple of hundred thousand! Not but what I think she's earned it! I should feel I deserved any reward if I'd worn stiff, uncomfortable frocks and out-of-date hats all my life. I shouldn't wonder if she made a brilliant marriage now, should you?"

"Not she," said the other girl. "She's in love with that cousin of hers who went to Canada. They say she's eyes for no one else."

"You mean the man who every one thought would have Frenon? Rough on him, isn't it? Especially if he expected it?"

"Yes. I wonder where he is and what he is like."

"Arthur Grimwade has always been awfully gone on Monica. You know, she is pretty despite the way she strains her hair back, and even her stiff clothes don't altogether conceal her elegance."

"Monica pretty! Monica elegant!" gasped Jasper to himself.

"I wonder if the Canadian cousin will marry her after all," went on one of the girls.

Jasper found herself gazing at the speaker in wide-eyed, open-mouthed astonishment. It was as if he were on the point of protesting vehemently that he had no notion or intention of marrying Monica Selworthy. But despite himself the girl's thoughtless words drummed on his ears as persistently as that astounding clause in the will.

That night as he sat alone in the smoking-room of his modest hotel in Bloomsbury he found himself thinking it over. He had first seen Monica as a little, shy orphan girl in a skimpy check frock, sitting cross-legged on the deep window-sill of the Frenon library. She had a big book on her knees and pretended to be reading, but Jasper saw that a little shower of childish tears rained down on the open pages. In schoolboy fashion he had said—

"Don't cry, kid! It never does any good."

And she had replied—

"I know it's silly, but I'm so lonely. I hate this great house, don't you?"

"Hate Frenon! Rather not! Why, it will be my own one day."

And now it was hers. Surely she no longer hated the stately, spacious place. But did she still feel lonely? After all, Monica was a good sort and there was no other girl why shouldn't he ask her? Then he would share Frenon. Dear old Frenon—how he loved it! It was in his blood to love the home of his fathers, the place that should have been his but for his aunt's capricious objection to men. Well, he would think about it—there was no hurry.

He did think about it, and meanwhile a week or two slipped by. "I must make up my mind one way or another," he reflected. "I wish I'd a pal I could talk it over with. But, hang it all, there's only one person a decent fellow should talk his matrimonial intentions over with, and that's the girl he intends to marry!"

"You're wanted on the telephone, sir," announced the page-boy.

Jasper hurriedly followed him to the office. He raised the receiver.

"Hallo!" he said.

"Is that you, Jasper?" It was Monica's voice. "You'll be surprised to hear I'm in town. I want you to come and see me. I'm staying at the Elite. An old friend is with me. When will you come? This afternoon? That will do nicely. Good-bye."

Jasper went back to the smoking-room.

"Good heavens!" he ejaculated as he sunk into a deep chair. "Monica at the Elite! I'm sure at Sarah never introduced her to anything as sensible, and central, and up-to-date as the Elite. She always patronised an unget-at-able boarding-house noted for its bad cooking and its dearth of waiters—but, dash it, it's a pity Monica hurries herself at a fellow's head in this way! She might have left it to me to do a little of the courting. One wouldn't have thought of her doing this. Dear me, how awful her clothes will look in London! I'm always sorry for any girl who doesn't know how to make the best of herself, but Monica is the extension of the limit."

A four o'clock that afternoon he made his way through the revolving doors of the great hotel. He did not immediately approach the inquiry desk, but loitered about in the outer lounge watching the busy scene. His attention was arrested by two smart women as they passed along one of the long corridors.

"Poor Monica," he reflected again, "what a fish out of water!"

Suddenly one of the women he was admiring wheeled round, recognised him, and hurried back with outstretched hand.

"Jasper, I'm so glad," she began cordially.

"Why, Monica, what—how—dear me—" He floundered incoherently as he gazed at the woman who was an old friend and a total stranger in one.

Monica laughed a merry little laugh of self-assurance and self-satisfaction such as she had never been able to cultivate in the old drab days when she had lived under the regime of aunt Sarah.

"I know you're surprised at me," she said with the same self-assurance that gave her an unexpected charm, "but I'm not surprised at myself because this is the real I. The other wasn't; it was a lifeless sort of scarecrow thing dressed up by aunt."

"You're — you're — wonderful," he stammered, admiringly as he took in every detail.

"You see, we had to come up," she went on; "there was such a lot of business to see to. Mr. Grimwade, the solicitor, had come too."

Jasper suddenly felt unwarrantably jealous of Arthur Grimwade.

"Why did you hurry away from Frenon so?" she asked presently. "It was too bad of you, my only relative,

"Oh, yes, there's Mrs. Bert Grimwade, a widowed sister-in-law of Mr. Grimwade! She is with me always. I must introduce you."

The Grimwades are playing their cards keenly," was Jasper's silent comment as he bowed to the alert young widow.

"Perhaps you'll let me take you out somewhere to-night," he said, addressing them both.

"Oh, we're dining with my brother-in-law at his hotel!" said the chaplain.

"I'd go and leave me in that great lonely house."

"Lonely! he thought. So she was still lonely despite her riches!"

"But you have some one living with you at Frenon?" he asked.

"Yes, I'm afraid we must keep our appointment," said Monica, tears on her cheeks.

"Now which of us is going to win? Grimwade or I?" thought Jasper. "It will be a neck-to-neck race, that's quite certain."

ing in that Bloomsbury hotel while Grimwade got the first innings!

Ignoring the presence of the alert widow, he leaned forward and said in a desperately eager voice—

"I say, Monica, let's jump in a taxi and go as far as Hyde Park. You've no idea how lovely it's looking—the flowers and all that."

"Bring her back in time for dinner," protested the chaplain. "Remember, Monica, Arthur is expecting us to—"

"Hang dinner! Hang Arthur!" muttered Jasper as they entered the taxi. Then he turned to Monica. "Do you know," he began, "if you hadn't rung me up to-day I was coming to Frenon to-morrow?"

"Oh, were you really, Jasper? I—I wish I'd let you."

"Because—because it would have been nicer if you'd come to me instead of—of me coming?"—she faltered—"to you," she finished under her breath.

"I'm glad you have come," he said bluntly, "for you've saved me doing a cashish thing."

"What do you mean?"

He caught her hand in his and gazed ardently into her eyes.

"I suppose," said Monica dreamily, in a voice of utter content, "a woman always knows because she's always in love with love."

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY RESULTS FROM FALLEN WIRES!

All Shipping In Harbor Set Adrift By Gale

Many Vessels Collide But Damage Slight

Last night's gale was the worst for many years, and the work was necessary to extricate her for many years, and altho little damage to property of any consequence was done, the ship's deck is so far reported from nearby places, fittings were broken, but the hull was undamaged.

The Miriam H. went adrift from her anchorage in the stream and stream having been sent adrift, went down the harbor as if nothing whatever held her. The vessel was drifting towards the lower Southside, Battery till the ingraham went to the Southside premises of her owner, her assistance and even with rail began to drag her anchors and came speed on the tug was barely able to down across the Madeline Constance, hold her own with the vessel, which some distance to leeward. As soon as they struck, both the bark and the steamer began to drift together and for a time it was feared that they would bring up against the Cape Race and Evelyn, all three- coal hulk to which the beam-ended schooner Huntley is attached, in which event the whole four must have gone from their fastenings, but this was averted, and after dragging for several hours the Neptun's stern moorings were strengthened and both vessel and steamer were secured.

The schooner Cape Pine, which was laying up and anchored well up the stream, drifted down the harbor till she was brought to a stop by the schooner Roy Bruce, anchored off Harvey's lower premises. Both these schooners pounded together for some time, but neither sustained any serious damage.

The steamer Edmund Donald also broke adrift and went down broadside till she was brought up by the three masted schooner Dobbie and another. An attempt was made to

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

The man arrested some time ago at Botwood and charged with the larceny of a quantity of goods from Botwood Stores, of which he was manager up to a few months ago, was before the court yesterday and pleaded guilty. He was fined one hundred dollars or in default 3 months imprisonment. Restitution to the amount of one hundred dollars is being made in addition to the amount already paid back.
A man arrested last night for assaulting a police officer was remanded for 8 days.
Two drunks were discharged.
A drunk given in charge last night for acting in a disorderly manner at the Duckworth St. Salvation Army Barracks was discharged.
A girl belonging to Trinity Bay, taken in for safe keeping, will be sent home.
A 17 year-old boy of Carter's Hill, for safekeeping, was discharged.

BAND DANCE

The Bungalow at Bowling Park was the scene of an enjoyable dance last night. The affair was well attended and a happy time was spent by all. The music was supplied by the C.L.B. C. Band under Capt. Morris; while the catering was attended to by Mrs. Bendell and her staff, and was all that could be wished for. Return to town was made about 2 o'clock this morning and the wish of all was that another such be held soon.

TANKS FOR WIRELESS STATION

Two large oil tanks that recently arrived here for the Mount Pearl Wireless Station were removed to the station this forenoon from the city by Mr. C. F. Lester's teams. These tanks, which have a capacity of more than a thousand gallons each, are made of half-inch galvanized iron, and are consequently very heavy and difficult to handle, but nevertheless the work of removing them was carried out without a hitch.

GETTING CHEAPER

The price of sugar continues to show a downward tendency. It is now being quoted at $10.80 the hundred pounds, and in most stores it is being retailed at 12 cents a pound. The price of flour is also going down and the prediction of dealers some time ago as told in the Advocate, of the downward tendency is being justified.

Jumped Overboard and Was Drowned

A sad affair marred the recent voyage of the S. S. Caraqueet, on the trip from Bermuda. On Sunday last Engineer J. Osborne, of the S. S. Caraqueet, who was coming to St. John on the Caraqueet, jumped overboard and was drowned. On the trip up Osborne became insane, and was placed under guard for safe keeping. Early Sunday afternoon he escaped from his keepers and rushing on deck, jumped overboard before any one could reach him. The unfortunate man disappeared immediately. He was not seen again. The ship was put about on the cry of "man overboard," and a boat lowered near the place Osborne disappeared. Although two hours were spent in searching, no trace could be found of him. Officers of the Caraqueet were unable to state where the unfortunate man lived or whether he left a family or not.—St. John Globe.

THIS MORNING'S FIRE

Fire at what is known as Syme's Range, Waterford Bridge Road, at 7:45 this morning threatened to leave many families homeless. A quick response to a telephone call by the Central and Western Fire Brigades saved the situation. They found the roof of a house occupied by a man named Mullins ablaze but the fire was put out before serious damage was done.

Pressman Shoots Another At Telegram Office

Richard Butler, a stereotypist man at the "Evening Telegram" office was shot by his own revolver in the hands of Pressman Hedley Tuff in the press room of the Telegram Building at 11 o'clock this morning.

Butler now lies at the General Hospital with a bullet in his body a few inches below his heart. He had a revolver at the office where he kept it in a box loaded. Some days ago Tuff came upon the weapon and finding it loaded, extracted the bullets. Butler must have loaded it again shortly afterwards and this forenoon he took it out and in play, pointed it at Tuff. The latter snatched it out of Butler's hand, pointed it at him and, thinking it was still unloaded as he had last left it, pulled the trigger, sending a shot into Butler's body. Dr. Murphy was called and sent the injured man to the hospital to have the bullet located. The medical opinion was that if no artery was severed, the result of the wound would not be fatal.

POLICE ASSAULTANT CAPTURED

A 19 year-old laborer of Monroe St. was taken into custody last evening following police investigations into the fracas on New Gower St. on Sunday night last, in which Constable Cunningham was assaulted whilst endeavouring to arrest a man who was creating a disturbance there. The man who assaulted the constable escaped for the time being, and the one arrested last night is believed to be the guilty party.

Girl On Way to School Killed Instantly This Morning

BY ELECTRIC CURRENT

When She Touched Wire Fence Charged By Fallen Pole

One instantly killed and two injured resulted from fallen electrical wires charging a wire fence this morning on Torbay Road just this side of Mount Cashel.

Fourteen-year-old Margaret Skinner, daughter of Walter Skinner, of the Cove Road, was instantly killed when she grasped the fence to climb over it, and two men named Tilley and Cole were knocked out by the current when they came in contact with the fence.

A dog that climbed on the fence at the same time that Margaret Skinner met her death was also instantly killed.

The tragedy attending the death of them cut off the power. Dr. Kohn Margaret Skinner has shocked the and Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan were whole neighborhood in which she lives on the scene and although the ed. The circumstances surrounding little girl was beyond all aid. Dr. the sad affair are such that a holocaust was averted only by a miracle. to the others, who were injured more The unfortunate girl was on her way from home, on the Cove Road, to the school house which is situated near Torbay Road and, as was the custom with the children of that neighborhood, she was crossing the fields to reach her destination by the most direct route.

An electric light pole on the side of the Torbay Road had been blown down during the night and the live wires rested on a wire fence separating the field crossed by the girl from the road, with the result that the wires of the fence were charged and as soon as the unfortunate girl touched them to get over she was killed.

Usually some twelve or fourteen school children crossed the fields together and it was their almost constant practice, when nearing this particular fence, to make a dash for it to see who would be the first over, but for some unexplainable reason, Margaret Skinner was the first to reach the death-charged fence this morning and was therefore the only one to meet with a tragic end.

Two men Tilley and Cole came along just about the same time, both grasping the harmless looking wires together with the result that Tilley was instantly rendered unconscious while Cole, whose contact was not as firm as that of Tilley, escaped with a bad burning. Mrs. Cole, whose house is nearby, saw the accident and ran to the scene. She, of course, did not at once grasp the significance of the unusual sight she was witnessing but, fortunately, she too did not touch the fence. Seeing the prostrate Tilley, however, she grasped him about the shoulders to pull him away from the wires and received a severe shock. Nevertheless, she persisted in her efforts till she freed him. When he regained consciousness he knew nothing of what had taken place. He scarcely knew he had touched the wire fence so instantaneous had been the shock, but when he came to himself and realized how narrowly he had escaped sharing the fate of the unfortunate girl Skinner, he was thankful indeed to kind Providence that had saved him from such a tragic death.

A large dog that had been in the field through which Margaret Skinner went to her death, was the second victim of the unusual tragedy. The animal was killed instantly on coming against the powerfully charged wires. The terrible happening was made known in the city by the Christian Brothers of Mount Cashel, who as quickly as they could got word to the Reid Nfld. Co's. sub-station and had
